Dakar, 4 - 29 October/octobre 2004

Introduction

CODESRIA organises from 04 to 29 October 2004, the Child and Youth Studies Institute on the theme "Children and Youth in the Labour Process".

CODESRIA Documentation and Information Centre (CODICE) has produced this bibliography which comprises four parts.

The first part is a list of documents generated from the CODICE bibliographic data base. All these documents are available at CODICE.

The second part is an annotated list of e-documents available on web sites.

The third part is a selection of web sites on the themes of the Institute.

The fourth part indicates main documentation centres, libraries and resource centres in Dakar having relevant materials.

1. The Cocoa Industry in West Africa: A History of Exploitation

This report provides an in-depth analysis of how cocoa is produced and how child and slave labour enter its chain of production. It relates the history of cocoa and explores how this commodity fits within a global market. Drawing on a wide range of sources, it concludes with recommendations for consumers, the chocolate industry and governments on actions needed to address this serious problem.

Anti-Slavery International 2004, 71 pages

2. International Action Against Child Labour : Guide to Monitoring and Complaints Procedures

Produced by Anti-Slavery International for organisations wanting to persuade governments to take action against child labour. It explains clearly how and why to use international monitoring and complaints procedures to encourage governments to respect their obligations regarding child rights. Twenty-eight pages including cover, with illustrations and case studies.

4. The Impact of Discrimination on Working Children and on the Phenomenon of Child Labour

Why do children work? Most children work because their families are poor and their labour is necessary for their survival.

Discrimination on grounds including gender, race or religion may also play a large part in why some children work. This six-page report investigates how discrimination works as a cause and a consequence of child labour.

5. Child Domestic Workers : Finding a Voice, a Handbook on Advocacy

This book draws on the experience of activists from 17 countries and representatives of international and regional agencies who attended a workshop that Anti-Slavery International convened in April 2001. A practical "how to" guide which will help local level NGOs and activists plan, design, implement and evaluate the impact of an advocacy strategy on child domestic workers. ### 16. Human Traffic, Human Rights: Redefining Victim Protection

Securing prosecutions of traffickers is not the same as protecting victims' rights. This report looks at measures to protect trafficked people in Belgium, Colombia, Italy, the Netherlands, Nigeria, Poland, Thailand, Ukraine, the UK and the US. It includes case studies and documents good and bad treatment by authorities. Concludes with recommendations on areas such as investigation and prosecution, residency status, protection, in-court evidentiary protection, support and assistance, and legal redress and compensation.

17. La Traite des personnes, les droits de l'homme : redéfinir la protection des victimes

Assurer la poursuite judiciaire des trafiquants est différent d'assurer le droit des victimes d'être protégé. Ce rapport étudie les mesures prises pour la protection des victimes de la traite dans dix pays différents: la Belgique, la Colombie, les Etats Unis, l'Italie, le Nigeria, les Pays Bas, la Pologne, le Royaume Uni, la Thaïlande et l'Ukraine. Ce rapport inclut des études de cas de personnes qui ont été victimes de la traite, soulignant les bons et les mauvais traitements des autorités. Sur la base de cette recherche, Anti-Slavery International fait 45 recommandations dans différents domaines tels que l'enquête et la poursuite judiciaire, le permis de séjour, la protection contre les représailles, la protection des témoins au sein du tribunal et la réparation juridique et les dommages et intérêts.

20. Migrations et traites de liens : La lutte contre la traite passe par la protection des droits fondamentaux des travailleurs migrants

La traite, le trafic de migrants et les migrations sont des phénomènes distincts mais liés. Cet ouvrage a pour ambition d'examiner la traite dans un cadre plus large, celui des flux migratoires, et de suggérer des politiques permettant de lutter contre la traite et de prévenir les violations des droits de l'homme et des droits sociaux dont sont si souvent victimes les travailleurs migrants aujourd'hui.
